Quotes and Notes

"We are taught by (the psalmist's) example, that it is not enough for the faithful to abstain from hurting others: they must, moreover, study to allure them by gentleness, and to bend them to good will. Should their moderation and kindness be rejected, let them wait in patience, until God at length show himself from heaven as their protector. Let us, however, remember, that if God does not immediately stretch forth his hand on our behalf, it is our duty to bear the wearisomeness occasioned by delay, like (the psalmist), whom we find in this psalm giving thanks to God for his deliverance, while, at the same time, as if worn out by the weariness of waiting for it, he bewails the long oppression to which he had been subjected by his enemies."

-John Calvin (1509-1564), Commentary on the Psalms

"People submerged in a culture swarming with lies and malice feel like they are drowning in it: they can trust nothing they hear, depend on no one they meet. Such dissatisfaction with the world as it is is preparation for traveling in the way of Christian discipleship. The dissatisfaction, coupled with a longing for peace and truth, can set us on a pilgrim path of wholeness in God.

"A person has to be thoroughly disgusted with the way things are to find the motivation to set out on the Christian way. As long as we think that the next election might eliminate crime and establish justice or another scientific breakthrough might save the environment or another pay raise might push us over the edge of anxiety into a life of tranquility, we are not likely to risk the arduous uncertainties of the life of faith. A person has to get fed up with the ways of the world before he, before she, acquires an appetite for the world of grace."

-Eugene Peterson (1932-2018), A Long Obedience in the Same Direction

"Lord, it breaks my heart, and often my patience, when despite my overtures of peace a person remains implacably adversarial. And I live in a culture where many think constant, angry indignation is a moral virtue. Lord, I ask your help to continue loving and offering respect to those who are against me and what I believe. Amen."

-Tim and Kathy Keller, The Songs of Jesus
