Quotes and Notes

"In both their past (Egypt) and their future (Canaan), the Israelites confronted nations whose manner of living differed radically from the life the Lord intended for his creation. Those living in this way not only removed themselves from the sphere of his favour, they placed themselves into the sphere of rebellion against him, where they could expect his full and just opposition.

But this was not the Lord's intention for humanity, whom he had created to experience his blessing and favour. He therefore begins and ends this chapter by stressing the importance of obeying his commands. These commands marked the borders of his holy kingdom, a kingdom whose members experienced life under his favour and blessing."

- Jay Sklar, Leviticus

"There is no doubt from his writings that if Paul had witnessed the race-based, man-stealing, chattel slavery practiced by self-identifying Christians in America he would have condemned it outright. But he would also have condemned the ways in which many churches today condone sexual immorality for Christians, both heterosexual and homosexual."

- Rebecca McLaughlin, The Secular Creed

"We don't get to pick the age we will live in, and we don't get to choose all the struggles we will face. Faithfulness is ours to choose; the shape of that faithfulness is God's to determine."

- Kevin DeYoung, What Does the Bible Really Teach about Homosexuality?

"At the heart of the homosexual condition is a deep loneliness, the natural human hunger for mutual love, a search for identity, and a longing for completeness. If homosexual people cannot find these things in the local 'church family', we have no business using that expression. The alternative is not between the warm physical relationship of homosexual intercourse and the pain of isolation in the cold. There is a third option, namely a Christian environment of love, understanding, acceptance and support...Perplexing and painful as the homosexual Christian's dilemma is, Jesus Christ offers him or her (indeed, all of us) faith, hope and love - the faith to accept both his standards and his grace to maintain them, the hope to look beyond present suffering to future glory, and the love to care for and support one another."

- John Stott (1921-2011), Decisive Issues Facing Christians Today
